PASSENGER TRAIN DERAILED.

Illinois Central Cars Jump Track Near Swanwick.

It is supposed that spreading rails caused the derailment of all of the coaches of the Illinois Central passenger train No. 34, running between New Orleans and St. Louis, early yesterday morn-

The accident occurred near Swanswick, Ill., about fifty miles from St. Louis, and might have been serious had not an embankment near the track prevented the oaches from overturning. The locomotive did not leave the track. The locomotive did not leave the track. As it was, all the passengers escaped with nothing worse than a bad shaking up. The train was composed of a baggage and express car, three day coaches and three Pullman sleepers, all of which were comfortably filled with passengers.

A. H. Annan, manager of the Roebling Construction Company; Attorney W. E. Fisse and Joseph Wheless, all of St. Louis, were on the train.

John Kelley Claims Gus Boyer Assaulted Him-Injury Due to Accidental Clash of Weapons.

Armed with a butcher's steel and a large bread knife, Gus Boyer, a barber, and John Kelley, an attendant in a saloon at Sixth and Chestnut streets, fought a brief, but fatal duel at 7 o'clock yesterday evening. Boyer suffered a gash that almost severed his head from his body, and he died at the City Hospital at 11 o'clock last

Kelley declares that Boyer was intoxicated and leaned on dishes full of victuals on the lunch stand of which Kelley has on the lunch stand of which Kelley has charge. When requested to move Boyer became abusive, Kelley says, and threatened the latter.

Seizing the steel, Boyer, it is said, rushed at Kelley and attempted to strike him. The blow was parried by a knife which Kelley was using to cut bread at the time. In trying to avoid another lunge, Kelley says, he hacked Boyer in the neck. The long, keen blade sank deep into the flesh and severed the carotid artery. Jeff Douglas, another employe, corroborates Kelley's account of the cutting. Unconscious from the great loss of blood, Boyer was brought to the City Dispensary, where the arteries were tied. He was so weak, however, that he did not rally after the operation, which he underwent at the City Hospital half an hour later.

Radiey was arrested by Patrolman Jerry Hickey. At the Central Police Station Kelley wept and declared that he was sorry he had injured Boyer. The fatal blow, he said, was struck in an effort to ward off the steel with which, he says, Boyer attacked him.

Boyer had been in St. Louis only a week, having come to this city from Chicago, where he lived at No. 21 Rush street. He was employed in a barber shop at No. 106 North Sixth street, and boarded at No. 218 Franklin avenue. He was 24 years old.

When she saw him on the platform she at once called her husband's attention to the fact, but they had not then heard of the tragedy and paid little attention to him. The last they remember seeing him was this side of Gffmore, a little town about thirty miles out of St. Louis.

When they heard of the murder they at once recalled seeing the young man on the train and wrote to Warrenton.

Chief Desmond has detailed men on the case and they will run down every clew. On the same Monday afternoon a young man answering Church's description was seen to board the Wabash train at Case, Mo. a station near Warrenton, so the authorities feel certain that the youth is in hiding in or near St. Louis.

"We first noticed the boy at Truesdall when our train was sidetracked to wait for a fast train," said Mr. Leeak last night. "The fellow, whom I thought was Church, came up to me and asked me what was the number of the fast train." only to have Small capture the second set, 2-6. In the final match, Gleeson easily won by a score of 6-3.

All the matches in the other divisions had been ended for the day when this event was carded, and the spectators were much interested in the outcome. The game was, closely contested throughout, but Gleeson proved his superiority in the final match.

Three double teams are now in the finals in that class. The last double event yesterday was between Ralph McKittrick-Howard Eliting and Greenwood-Charles. The first-mentioned team won easily by scores of 6-4 and 1-5.

McKittrick and Elting, Semple and McDonald and Sheldon and Wilder will contest for the double till to-day. M. D. McDonald has been playing a strong game throughout, and he and Doctor Semple seem to have a good chance in the match of this afternoon.

W. D. Hudson played a strong game in his match with Semple, His work was good throughout. Clarence Gamble attracted attention by his returns and deliveries, his smashing power being most apparent in every ball. In this respect, he is probably the strongest player in the tournament.

Arthur Wear seems to make a specialty of lobbing, and his work of this sort was quite a feature. Harold Small played a steady and consistent game throughout, but he met a faster man in Gleeson in the closing match of the day.

Duckworth, one of England's great cricketers, gave a great display, scoring 47 before being dismissed by Robinson. Loring Clarke, the Beau Brummel of the club, played faultless cricket for a 21-not-out, earned by an Irish bat brought over specially from Erin. Joe Fletcher showed some of his old stone-wall attyle, being credited by a well-earned 14. The game resulted in a win for England by a score of 125 to 68.

The score: of Mrs, Martha Phipps against the Santa Fe Railroad, whereby the plaintiff received a judgment of $14,198,28 against the defendant company.

The case was tried in Hannibal before Judge Elmer B. Adams. The Santa Fe was sued by Mrs. Phipps for damages for the burning of a business house and a stock of goods at Ethel, Macon County, September 10, 1901, the plaintiff alleging that the fire was started by a spark from one of defendant's engines. The lower court gave judgment for the amount above mentioned and defendant appealed. At the time of the burning of the Phipps property nineteen other buildings in Ethel were burned. Suits were brought against the Santa Fe aggregating $50,000. It was agreed that the Phipps case should be a test case, to determine whether the railroad was responsible for the fire. Assistant United States District Attorney Bert D. Nortoni is attorney for all of the plaintiffs. Under the agreement the other cases are practically won.

HUNDREDS SEE ROME BURN. Opening Night at Paine's Grand Spectacular Entertainment.

Rome rejuvenated itself and burned again to the familiar notes of Nero's fiddle and the accommodating spirif of Paine's im-proved pyrotechnics at Handlan's Park last night, to the gratification of many thousand spectators within the arena. The Alton "Blues" practically cinched day by winning from the Kerns. The final score was 6 to 0 in favor of the "Bob" Taibot, who twirled for the Kerns, was out of form in the first inning, and rank fielding behind him allowed the Blues to score five runs. Taibot sent eight of the "Blues" to the washhouse over the breeze route. Pears, who twirled for the "Blues." was in rare form, and let the Kerns down with four safetics. Bader and Liefield did the best batting for the victors, while Stamm and Kelly carried off the fielding honors.

The score:

last night, to the gratification of many thousand spectators within the arena.

The Roman dancing girls and the charlot races and the performances of the Lucas family, the Dam brothers, the Zenos, the Clews, Congo and Leos, in acrobatic, trapeze, tumbling and wrestling, were to the entire satisfaction of the audience and apparently to Nero himself.

It was when the fireworks began, and when the great balloons that sailed out over the tops of the crowd, trailing their comet-like tails of fire hundreds of feet over the city roofs, the tarantula rockets, spinning out their web of golden lights above the crowded amphitheater, the Niagara of color that poured over the crest of the brilliant fails, the showers of rockets, parachutes and bombs that illuminated the sky for miles, that the crowds reached the height of enthusiasm, however.

The performance at Handlan's will con-Alton.

Before he could catch a fugitive from arrest, Patrolman John Dee of the Fifth District had to impress a buggy belonging to a citizen, fire a fusillade of shots at the fleeing figure and drive at top speed for nearly a mile yesterday afterno

The fugitive was James Johnson, a negro, who was attempting to escape arrest after assaulting Moses Weisman of rest after assaulting Moses Weisman of No. 1818 North Ninth street. A crowd collected about Johnson after his attack on Weisman, and, fearing summary punishment at the hands of the indignant citizens, he leaped into a buggy and drove west on Cass avenue.

A man who was passing in a buggy at the time was ordered to yield the vehicle to the patrolman's use. Whipping the horse to a gallop, Dee was soon gaining on the negro. Hundreds of pedestrians witnessed the chase and drivers gave both buggies wide berth all along their route. At Thirteenth and Wright streets, the horse driven by Johnson became jaded and could no longer outdistance the fresher animal drawing Patrolman Dee. The latter whirled past the negro and drew him from the buggy before he could leap to the ground.

In an effort to put the handcuffs on his prisoner, Patrolman Dee was struck in the face by Johnson.
